

ABSTRACT

The present invention describes methods of producing cell lines which express recombinant DNA encoding bone morphogenetic proteins (BMP). The cell lines are capable of being implanted in order to enhance the regeneration of tissues through both autocrine and paracrine effects. The cells may further contain DNA encoding receptor proteins which are able to bind to BMPs or enhance or regulate BMP activity.

10

15

[p:\applictn\5298a.app]

00148234-090400
00148234-090400

add B5